Post Oak

Leaf Deciduous leaves are 4 to 6 inches long Lobes form a cross shape

Tree Description Medium to large size Up to 50 feet tall with trunk 2 feet in diameter

Bark Thick, gray-brown Narrow, irregular cracks and scaly ridges on older trees

Wood

Heavy, hard Used for crossties and fence posts, sometimes for lumber

Notes

So common that an entire ecoregion is named Post Oak Savannah

Trees of Texas website http://texastreeid.tamu.edu

American Elm

Leaf Deciduous leaves are 4 to 6 inches long, 2 to 3 inches wide Oval, tip comes to a point Base is lopsided and double toothed

Tree Description Large size, up to 90 feet tall

Bark Dark gray Divided into irregular flat-topped, thick ridges

Wood

Heavy, hard, strong Once used for wheel hubs, furniture parts, veneer for baskets

Notes

Historically a common street tree, but almost wiped out by Dutch Elm Disease

Copyright © Robert O'Brien

Trees of Texas website http://texastreeid.tamu.edu

Red Maple

Leaf

Deciduous leaves are 2 to 5 inches long Has 3 to 5 pointed saw-toothed lobes In autumn, leaves turn a brilliant shade of red or orange-yellow

Tree Description

Medium size, fast growing, reaches 90 feet tall

Bark

Smooth and light gray on young tree Rough, scaly, dark gray on old limbs and trees

Wood

Heavy, close-grained, light brown color Used for furniture, turned items, fuel

Notes

Also named Swamp Maple, Trident Maple, Drummond Red Maple

Trees of Texas website http://texastreeid.tamu.edu

Pecan

Leaf

Deciduous leaves have 11 to 17 leaflets, lanceolate Margins are finely-toothed and long-pointed

Tree Description

Large size, but can grow tall and slender in wooded settings Up to 120 feet tall with trunk 4 feet in diameter

Bark

Gray-brown and smooth at first

Thin scales on older trees that flake off, creating a rough texture

Wood

Heavy and hard, but brittle and not strong Used for flooring and cooking wood, especially for barbeques

Notes

Copyright © Robert O'Brien

Copyright © Robert O'Brier

Loblolly Pine

Leaf

Evergreen needles in bundles of three, 5 to 10 inches long

Tree Description

Large, fast growing Up to 125 feet tall with trunk 4 feet in diameter

Bark

Thick, dark red-brown to black flaky plates

Wood

Most commercially valuable southern pine, coarse-grained For lumber, posts, boxes, pulp, and many more uses

Notes

Southern Pine Beetle once damaged large pine stands that today are protected by sustainable management practices Find more at http://tfsweb.tamu.edu/insects

Trees of Texas website http://texastreeid.tamu.edu

Texas Ash

Leaf

Deciduous leaves with 5 oval or round leaflets Dark green on top, lighter below

Tree Description

Medium sized, oval crown Up to 45 feet tall with trunk 2 feet in diameter

Bark

Gray with brown or black blotches with interlocking flattened ridges

Wood

Light colored with brown heartwood Used for firewood and flooring

Notes

Emerald Ash Borer is a threat to all ash species and has been recently discovered in Texas Find more at http://tfsweb.tamu.edu/eab

Trees of Texas website http://texastreeid.tamu.edu

TEXAS A&M FOREST SERVICE

Copyright © Robert O'Brien

Copyright © Robert O'Brier